Item A Khashab Ltd

Khashab Ltd is a timber wholesaler in Oman which buys wood in bulk from Europe and then sells it to local builders. The price Khashab pays depends on if there is a surplus of timber on the world market and also the Omani rial/euro (OMR/EUR) exchange rate.

Khashab gives its customers three months' credit when they buy wood. This means the customers have some time before they need to pay their bill. This arrangement often means that Khashab has cash flow problems. Occasionally a builder will go out of business and Khashab will lose the money it is owed. The owners would like to reduce the credit arrangement, because of the cash flow problems for the business. There is a tradition in the region, however, that credit facilities are offered to customers.

There are four other competing timber wholesalers in the town where Khashab is based. Khashab has been established longer than the other businesses and many builders prefer to deal with it because they know and trust the owners.

1 0 . 1	Identify and explain two benefits that the local builders receive by buying building materials in a competitive timber market.

Item B Khashab Ltd

Khashab owns an old wood-cutting machine. The machine regularly breaks down and it costs a lot of money to repair it. The manager of the company wants to invest in a new, more efficient machine, which would cost 40,000 OMR to buy. The manager estimates that the machine will save the business 15,000 OMR each year in repair bills.

months, if Khashab were to buy the new machine.	[3 marks

Item C Khashab Ltd

Khashab's accountant shows the income statement for the last two years to the owners of the company (see Figure 1). The owners are very worried to see that the Gross Profit Margin (GPM) has gone down from 25% to 22%.

The accountant explains that production costs have risen because the imported wood is becoming more expensive. The business has increased its prices but this has caused sales to fall. This is because competitors have not increased their prices by as much as Khashab's. The accountant says that net profits would have been much lower if they had not greatly reduced the number of people working in the company's offices.

Figure 1

Khashab's Income Statement (Profit & Loss Account)	2017	2016
Sales	1,000,000 OMR	1,200,000 OMR

Item D Subway Restaurants in China

Subway is a global fast food business. The company was started in the USA in 1965 by 17-year old Fred DeLuca with a US$ 1000 loan from a family friend, Pete Buck. Fred wanted to use any profits the business made to pay his way through university. The Subway brand became popular in the USA but there was a great deal of competition from other fast food companies.

Subway sells a range of sandwiches made with submarine-shaped ('sub') bread. Customers can choose the fillings for their sandwich from a large selection of meat, salads and dressings. The sandwich is made freshly with each customer choosing the fillings. Subway promotes its product as a healthier alternative to other fast food outlets, such as McDonalds and KFC.

Subway's restaurants in China are run as franchises. This means entrepreneurs pay Subway to use its brand. The entrepreneurs must also agree to follow strict rules. They have to buy food ingredients from Subway's suppliers and provide the same menu as every other Subway restaurant throughout the world. They are allowed to make some small changes to meet local needs, however.

Item E Subway Restaurants in China

Subway moved into international markets when the US became saturated with fast food outlets. After conducting market research, the first Subway restaurant was opened in China in 1995 and there are now about 600 restaurants. Most of the restaurants are located in Chinese city centres. A growing number of Subway restaurants, however, are opening in shopping malls away from the city centres. The product was targeted at young people who worked in offices near to the restaurant. These office workers were happy to accept western food and lifestyles more so than older people and those who lived in the country.

Subway encountered some cultural issues within the Chinese market:

- Chinese customers sometimes found it difficult to choose from the large variety of sandwiches available to them. Ordering food is much simpler in KFC and McDonalds.
- Many people were unfamiliar with eating bread as a main part of their diets.
- There was a culture of eating hot food rather than cold sandwiches.

Since the first Subway restaurant was opened in China, people's standard of living there has increased. There is also a higher proportion of the population living in cities. As they become wealthier, Chinese citizens expect a healthier lifestyle and are more concerned about the type of food that they eat. There is a rising trend of Chinese consumers eating meals outside the home.

Item F Subway Restaurants in China

Prices for Subway's sandwiches were set at 19 yuan (about US$ 3) which was cheaper than in the USA, but still too expensive for many Chinese people. It is cheaper for Chinese customers to get a meal from other fast food restaurants than buy a sandwich at Subway.

Subway does not have a large budget to spend on promoting its brand. As a result, few people who live outside the cities have heard of Subway's restaurants. Subway has started to use social media to get the Subway brand better known.
